

A-Core Container

Russian underground energy storage power station

Overview

Russia has finished building the country's first underground crude oil storage facility in the Krasnoyarsk region of East Siberia and is ready to test the facility, according to Rosnedra, the agency responsible for Russia's subsoil licensing.

Russian underground energy storage power station

Contact Us

For catalog requests, pricing, or partnerships, please visit:
<https://a-core.pl>